A Message from the President

Life-changing events for individuals, and organization-changing events for foundations can either be positive or negative. While sometimes there is little control over the outcome, most often, it is the perspective of the individual or the organizational leadership that drives the long-term result from a single event. For me personally, 2006 offered a chance to spend one week engaged in a sport that thrills and excites me like no other – whitewater rafting. The Middle Fork of the Salmon River in Idaho provided an opportunity to leave behind my professional skills and day-to-day routine to become a part of and a victim of nature in all its perfect sense. Several years ago, the same small group of friends made the whitewater trip of a lifetime down the Colorado River through the Grand Canyon, a trip about which author Teresa Jordan of Wyoming wrote, “For twelve days and 280 miles on the river, I am filled with awe – so struck by it, in fact, that if I have any courage at all, I shall never be the same.” Both of these experiences can have a profound effect on your life.

While I would never imply that the thrill of class IV rapids compares to serving our country in a foreign land, Ms. Jordan’s quote from above is quite fitting for the men and women who served our nation in Southeast Asia. These proud South Dakotans were long overdue in receiving a welcome home from their tours of duty in Vietnam, and the state of South Dakota decided that 2006 was the right time to correct a wrong. In September, tens of thousands of Vietnam veterans, their families, friends and supporters, flocked to Pierre to celebrate their homecoming. Veterans like Tom Olsen of Wessington Springs, a successful farmer and statewide leader through his service in higher education, his alma mater, SDSU, and the incoming chairman of the South Dakota Community Foundation. Veterans like Duane Harms, a Brookings businessman who switched from flying helicopters to entering the energy business that fuels our farming operations, our small businesses, and the economies of South Dakota communities. And finally, veterans like Keith Goodhope, a banker in Winner who returned home to help make a difference in Tripp County by working hard to preserve family farming and ranching in the area, enabling young business owners to get a start and ensuring local students the opportunity to go away to college. None of these three men was ever the same after their service in Vietnam, and they all had the courage to improve the lives of others. The South Dakota Community Foundation was proud to serve as the fiscal administrator for the Vietnam War Memorial Dedication.

For the South Dakota Community Foundation, a strategic planning exercise resulted in a plan that will continue to re-shape South Dakota and the people that call it home. The board of directors is committed to growing the foundation, both in asset size and impact on the individuals and communities that have the courage to envision an even better South Dakota. This plan will result in greater awareness for the general public of what the South Dakota Community Foundation has done, and what remains to be accomplished in all corners of the state. You, our strong supporters, will see these changes over the next several years as the South Dakota Community Foundation celebrates its 20th anniversary in 2007, and our silver anniversary in 2012. The commitment to our donors and the communities we serve will not diminish over this time, but grow stronger as we work together to make a difference in the lives of South Dakotans. This will require work – hard work – from the board and staff of the South Dakota Community Foundation, and from local philanthropists and leaders dedicated to their communities and this state. But hard work has

The History

The South Dakota Community Foundation was part of a vision the late Governor George S. Mickelson had for the State of South Dakota. The SDCF was born as a public, nonprofit corporation on November 11, 1987 as part of a vision for our state's second century. The McKnight Foundation and the 3M Corporation issued challenge grants to the state of South Dakota in an effort to memorialize the life of South Dakota native William L. McKnight. McKnight was a former CEO of the 3M Corporation and the founder of the McKnight Foundation. The state of South Dakota committed $2 million to the project, and the SDCF leadership was required to raise another $3 million in twelve months to obligate the entire challenge grant. The original $10 million has now grown to a $60 million endowment serving nonprofits and charities in South Dakota. Through the continued generosity of South Dakotans and solid

The Mission

The mission of the South Dakota Community Foundation is to promote philanthropy, receive and administer charitable gifts and invest in a wide range of programs promoting the social and economic well being of the people of South Dakota.

Kinds of Funds

The South Dakota Community Foundation accepts and administers five kinds of funds, all of which are held in permanent endowment and are designed to allow the donor to meet their charitable goals.

Community Savings Accounts benefit a specific community or region of South Dakota. The earnings are awarded at the recommendation of a local board of directors.

2006 Unrestricted Funds

The South Dakota Community Foundation awarded forty-five grants totaling over $380,000 in 2006. These awards were made from the Foundation's unrestricted fund grant program. The grants ranged in size from $2,000 to $20,000 and were distributed to charitable and nonprofit organizations across South Dakota. The Foundation received 116 grant application requests totaling over $2.3 million

Access to Justice, Inc., Mission, SD - $20,000

Access to Justice, Inc. is a pro bono program, formed by the South Dakota Bar Association, which will supplement services currently being provided in civil cases by the two legal services programs in the state, East River Legal Services and Dakota Plains Legal Services. Access to Justice, Inc. currently has 92 lawyers who provide legal assistance without charging a fee in pro bono cases. There are also 40 USD law students who have volunteered to work on pro bono cases. Funds will assist with this program.

to tribal leaders and will work directly with them on strengthening the organizations and communities on South Dakota's reservations.
